REDHOT NEWS.

The Cincinnati Papers Beautifully Taken In by a Scamp.

It was a lie.

All Free-trade word.

And as wide as a barn door.

Yesterday's Cincinnati morning dailies all had a blooded sensation, detailing an attempt at suicide in Newport by some fellow who gave the name of Mr. J. M. Stockton of this city.

The particulars were so complete that one Reporter is said to have visited the boarding house of Mr. Stockton and to have had an interview with his distressed wife.

The whole story was remarkable—for the absence of a single grain of truth, so far as concerns Mr. Stockton or his wife.

These parties came home from Covington Monday evening, and neither of them had been out of the city since.

The "news" created considerable stir when the papers reached here, and hundreds of people rushed to Mr. Stockton's place of business—where they found him busily engaged waiting on customers.

There is some talk of legal proceedings against the papers; but the best course would be to proceed with a baseball bat against the contemptible car who imposed on the Reporters.

THE SEVENTEENTH OHIO.

Reunion of the Grizzled Old Veterans at Aberdeen Yesterday.

Gray-haired.

And battle-scarred.

Were most of the survivors of the Seventeenth Ohio Regiment who gathered in annual reunion at Aberdeen yesterday.

Colonel D. W. C. Loudon of Georgetown, permanent President of the Association, and who succeeded Colonel Joseph R. Cockerill as commander of the Regiment, was present.

Hon. T. F. Hill, Mayor of Aberdeen, gave the keys of the city to the boys, and the Police Department having been abolished for the time being, it goes without saying that everybody is having a good time.

In the afternoon Colonel John A. Cockerill, Editor of The New York Commercial Advertiser and son of Colonel Joseph A. Cockerill, treated the veterans to an address that was replete with warm-hearted and patriotic expressions of gratitude to the brave men who had marched under his father's command.

Colonel Cockerill was followed by Colonel S. W. Johnston of Washington City, who was Captain of the Company in which Colonel Loudon was a "high private" during the Mexican War. The Judge spoke feelingly of the war-time, and related a characteristic incident of General Grant, with whom he was personally intimate, and with whom he spent some time as his guest at City Point in 1865.

Being called upon Thomas A. Davis of this city acknowledged the compliment in a few remarks.

After this the meeting adjourned for supper, and last night there was a general good time among the old vets.

This morning the regular order of business will come up, including the election of officers and selection of next place of meeting.

DEBITS AND CREDITS.

A VERY PLAIN TALK TO PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

Forbids Remarks By a Workingman Who Works When He Can Get Work, But Has No Time to Think.

New York, September 1st, 1894.

New, Greater Cleveland, Washington, D. C.—Dear Sir:

About twenty months ago you were elected President of the United States. Before that time you announced your discovery of a patent process which you claimed would be sure to benefit the country and greatly improve the condition of the people, and you agreed to bring about such a result if you should get the job and be provided with the political tools you wanted for the purpose. Trusting to your representations and promises, and wishing to better our condition, if possible, enough of the working class to decide the election were persuaded to give you a trial, and to let the machinery and facilities necessary to the work. In consequence you secured the job, and have now worked at it about a year and a half, in which time you have turned out a large quantity of work, sufficient at least to show the kind and to do the work of the process, and whether you can be trusted to fulfill your agreement. In accordance with the general custom to periodically straighten business affairs, collect and pay debts and make plans for the future, it is desirable to examine your account on the books of the Nation and see how you stand to this time—what payments have been made to you; what and the sort of work you agreed to turn out; how much you have done of the kind required; what material, if any, you have ruined and are liable for; what you yet owe, and what steps you are taking to complete the contract—and therefrom determine what to let you go on and accept your work, or to give you your material and place the work in other hands. We workmen have a special interest in the examination because to you you have made the loudest promises and to our votes you owe the job.

THE CONTRACT.

The first thing that you record of the case is that when you bid for the job you demanded pay in advance for all the work you offered to do in order to give you the means to carry out the contract. This requirement was complied with and payment was made to you in full. The satisfaction by the office of President, with nearly $1,000 cash every week during four years—$200,000 in all—from the United States Treasury, in addition to the free use and control of the Government with its machinery and its large supply of raw material, together with enough special tools, called Congressmen, of the quality you said was necessary to you, which tools have cost to the Nation $40,000,000. You further offered to give us a further outlay of over $20,000,000 to provide. These being all you demanded our part of the contract has already been clearly fulfilled.

The obligations you took upon yourself in return for these payments and privileges were several. First, you were to give us such a high level of satisfaction as had long been satisfactorily fulfilled by those who had been doing work before you and are not necessary to refer to here. The principal ones—those which are important to us and in which we have a vital interest—concern the special things you have promised to turn out for our use and benefit. These things have been repeatedly described by you, and no dispute can therefore now be made regarding their quality and your method for making them, which was never fully understood by most of us, we have nothing to do with it. It is sufficient that you agreed to supply them.

The particular things promised—those which wholly induced us to give you the job—were that you would maintain and increase the prosperity of the country existing at that time; would keep our mines, mills, furnaces, factories and workshops in full operation; labor as well or better employed; that you would keep the cost of living, especially of us workmen, by making the necessities of life considerably cheaper. These you solemnly bound yourself to secure, and you have failed to do so.

Your ability to fulfill such an agreement was the subject of much dispute before it was made. You had acknowledged that you were not a good man upon that of the patent law Tariff process which you had invented and intended to use. A great number of people who were experienced in such business, however, not only expressed no confidence in you, but insisted that you would produce the exact opposite of what you claimed; that in place of maintaining prosperity you would destroy it and give us harder times; that mines, mills, furnaces, factories and workshops would be crippled and utterly forced to stop operations; that large numbers of workmen would be thrown out of jobs and forced to walk the streets, seeking work, before, while others still at work on reduced time or pay, lessened their purchases, and, in common with all classes, hoarded their money for use in case of need. The demand for goods from the working class, who together are the buyers of the greater part of those made and the freest spenders of money, thus became further reduced, and still less were sold, less manufactured, and more men turned adrift. So it went on, until finally business everywhere became prostrate, thousands of mills, factories, workshops and other industries closed, over 2,300,000 workmen and women became and are mostly still idle, with over 3,000,000 more partly so, through reduced hours, and wages, through the competition of the crowds who must have work or starve, have been reduced in the neighborhood of a quarter, with a prospect of a further and permanent reduction hereafter. Want, suffering, misery, and all the evils of poverty, in tens of thousands of workmen's homes; and the charity soup-house, which for over thirty years has been almost forgotten, has been revived and become a promising business all over the land.

A BAD JOB.

Such is the work which you have done, and your process has turned out to date, and which is charged against you as material in your account with the Nation; while the credit side—the side where ought to be found "continued and increased prosperity," "industries in full or fuller operation," "labor as well or better employed," "and wages equally good," which you guaranteed, and for which you were paid—is an entire blank, not a single one of these promises having been even partly fulfilled.

Louisville sent sixteen prisoners to the penitentiary last week.

The streetcar station at Georgetown burned one day this week.

Mrs. A. F. Curran of Dover has been quite ill with typhoid fever.

Mrs. Mary Hall Needham of Louisville died Wednesday at the age of 84.

During the past year Kentucky distillers made 20,138,805 gallons of whisky.

The party who really did attempt suicide at Newport was Mr. J. M. Stockton of Mayfield, which is in Graves county.

More than 60 towboats with empty coal barges are tied up between Pittsburgh and Parkersburg on account of low water.

At the present session of the Kentucky Masonic Grand Lodge the erection of an infirmary in connection with the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home in Louisville was determined upon.

Charles Hardin, Charlton H. Elrod, Charles Taylor and Jim Morris, the latter colored, were acquitted at Nashville of the charge of kidnapping the Adams Express Company of $3,000. They returned to their homes in Louisville, and their attorneys say that in a few days they will bring damage suits against the Adams Express Company. The Wells-Fargo Company, Captain Dodge, the Wells-Fargo detective.

The wedding party at the Strader-Neibitt apartment at Owingville last week were unusually numerous and very handsome and costly. Mrs. Leland Stanford of California, widow of the late Senator Stanford, sent a massive silver service valued at $2,000. The groom's gift to the bride was a deed to the fine Fayette Park residence which he lately bought and fitted up at Lexington.

A Washington dispatch says about 150 names on the eligible list of the Civil Service Commission will be dropped on the 19th inst. the names having been on the list one year. The parties thus dropped will have to take the examination again if they would continue on the list. Very few appointments are made these days in the classified service, as the Department has all the clerks they need. The only appointments the Commission is called upon to fill with anything like regularity are in the Railway Mail Service.

A point of interest in regard to schools and class taxation was decided in the State of Tennessee. The case was styled The Board of Trustees of Pineville School vs. The Bell County Coal and Improvement Company. A tax of 30 cents having been levied on the property of "all white persons" in the District, the company sought by an injunction to prevent the collection of the tax, on the ground that the company was not a natural person and had no color. The opinion of the court holds the company liable as corporations and embraced within the meaning of the term "white persons."

many into want, and some to live upon charity; that wages would be largely forced down by the competition of the unemployed here for the places of those at work, and by that of the half-price foreign workmen engaged in making the additional goods which you would bring into the country to displace those being made by ourselves; that the cost of the necessities of life would not be cheapened to any great extent, if at all, and that the mere acceptance of your bid and a certainty of a trial of your process, would be quickly followed by general depression and disaster.

Those doleful prophecies you denied, claiming that those making them were ignorant and fools, and you only wish to experience, and expressed a willingness to take the risk and to insure the promised result. We listened to your offer, and supposing you honest and your guarantee good, concluded to give you a chance to show it by an acceptance of your bid as desired. Having done so, we expect you to furnish everything exactly as promised; and any attempt to shirk your responsibility or to sneak out of giving what you have been so liberally paid for, by offering injured or bad work, will be resented, and result in our removing your tools, shutting off your steam and putting you into the hands of the Sheriff. Let us now look at what you have so far done and see what your arrangements promise hereafter.

AT THE TIME OF YOUR ELECTION.

At the time of your election the country was at the height of prosperity—the highest ever known. For many years business had been gradually improving until every line had become flourishing, with good trade, fair prices, reasonable profits and satisfaction on all sides. Mines, mills, factories and other industries were active, and generally working to their full capacity to meet the increasing demand. Many new industries had been put in operation since the passage of the McKinley Tariff Law, two years before, giving additional employment to capital and labor to supply our wants, and keeping large sums of money in the country to be spent among ourselves, which had before been sent and spent among workmen and people abroad. Labor was so fully employed that few were idle to compete for the jobs and pay of those at work, and in some branches and localities a scarcity of labor was felt. From the increased demand, and few idle workmen to be had, had reached a higher rate than ever before known.

But with your election the situation began to change, industries to droop and business to go downward. Before that event every man in the country was made fully acquainted with and had reached a decision regarding your process and intentions. At the election the subject was in every one's mind, and each man formed his own opinion of the result from their adoption. One half the people, including most of our merchants, manufacturers and men with business interests at stake, expressed by their votes their decided belief that your process would give the positive injury of themselves, as well as of the Nation. Your election removed all doubts of a trial of your process, and was accepted by at least every other man in the country as a notification that business was certain to be revolutionized, and that soon; that such goods or property as each had on hand, as well as those afterward made or produced, were to be cheapened; and that only four months to March 4th could be fully rolled up before the process would be begun. In consequence, these people began to consider their own future. Just where the blow would strike and in what way, or how much each one would be hurt, no one fully knew. Many, however, were being badly injured, perhaps ruined, for you had told them so; large numbers looked for considerable loss, for the same reason, and the others expected their interests would be more or less harmed.

Nearly half the Nation, seeing business and property threatened, felt sure there would be hard times, and began quietly to get in out of the wet before the storm should come. Those having things to sell, or to do, began to get rid of them while prices were good; those wanting to buy, either gave it up or postponed doing so until the time you promised for getting them cheaper; those on wages concluded, as did the sensible ones in our shop, to buy only the necessities and to hold on to what money they could for use in case of idleness or a reduction; those having money due hastened to collect while there was a chance of getting it; while those owing money were forced to pay as they came along as possible. The other half of the people, noticing the way things were going and having been told to expect it, also began to economize and quickly followed in the same line. Many a business rapidly decreased. Merchants early found themselves selling less, and stopped ordering new goods except as necessary, in order to avoid loss and perhaps ruin when the new goods should arrive. Manufacturers, in turn, ordered fewer orders from merchants and likewise expecting trouble, bought less raw material, stopped making more than enough to meet the lessened demand and reduced their laboring forces accordingly. Workmen, thus thrown out of work and pay and forced to live upon their savings or borrowed money, bought only food and necessities, and of these less than before, while others still at work on reduced time or pay, lessened their purchases, and, in common with all classes, hoarded their money for use in case of need. The demand for goods from the working class, who together are the buyers of the greater part of those made and the freest spenders of money, thus became further reduced, and still less were sold, less manufactured, and more men turned adrift. So it went on, until finally business everywhere became prostrate, thousands of mills, factories, workshops and other industries closed, over 2,300,000 workmen and women became and are mostly still idle, with over 3,000,000 more partly so, through reduced hours, and wages, through the competition of the crowds who must have work or starve, have been reduced in the neighborhood of a quarter, with a prospect of a further and permanent reduction hereafter. BLACKBIRDS GALORE.

They Clean Out a Big Cornfield Near Bowling Green.

The Mouth of Gasper neighborhood, near Bowling Green, is greatly agitated over the advent of a great swarm of blackbirds.

Some claim that millions of them are still there.

A few days ago a swarm alighted in a six-acre cornfield belonging to Obley Cown, and when they left about thirty millions later not a grain of corn was left.

Mr. Cown's son estimates the amount of corn eaten by the birds in thirty minutes at ninety bushels.

Three birds alighted with a shotgun, killing twenty-eight birds, but without causing the rest to fly.

Other immense droves of the pests are heard from, but none are equal to this.

America!
American Laws!
American Goods!
American Wages!
American Citizens!
American Institutions
Are Good Enough for THE LEDGER!

BEN MARSH has discovered another man's nest. A few days ago he printed an "extract" which appeared in the editorial column of THE LEDGER August 25th. The item had been clipped from a lying Democratic sheet, and it inadvertently found its way into these columns without the attendant editorial comments. Any fool would have "caught on," but such wise men as the Editor of THE Bulletin could not be expected to solve such a simple problem.

Buy American
Goods
Only!

If every patriotic American will purchase American goods only for his consumption he will lessen the disastrous effects of the Free-trade German Tariff BILL. THE LEDGER invites all to join in such a movement, and to sign the following pledge:

I hereby pledge myself to buy American goods only, whether of the farm, mine or factory, and to use my influence to have others do the same.

Name.....
P. O. ....

AS ADVERTS at bothery the Democratic party takes the cakery. Another complication has arisen regarding the free alcohol section of the new Tariff Law. Secretary CARLISLE, owing to the failure of Congress to make the necessary appropriation, is unable to put the law into effect. Notwithstanding the Secretary's decision, it is contended that alcohol used in the arts has been free since August 28th. Users of alcohol in medicine and the arts want to know whether they are violating the law in removing revenue stamps from the empty barrels. If they do not they will have no evidence upon which to base claims against the Government for the return of duty paid since the law went into effect. On the other hand, as the law now stands, they are liable to heavy penalties for not destroying the stamps when the barrels are emptied.

Our good friend of THE Bulletin is just now deeply engaged in appealing to the farmer voters to walk up to the trough and eat hay, with the Protective Tariff reduced to $2 a ton. The Mason county farmer was fooled by you once before; he is not going to let you cajole him again.

CANADA has a duty of 5 cents per bushel on wheat imported into that country. Also 2 cents per pound on meat, 20 per cent. on feathers; 10 cents on hogs, and so on with nearly all farm products. Now, says THE Flemingsburg Gazette, if the foreigner doesn't pay the tax, let our farmers begin shipping their products into Canada.

If one should judge from THE Ashland News—which has itself said that it is a paper for revenue only—there are but two men running for office on the Democratic ticket in Boyd county—Mr. JOHN O'KELLY and Mr. FRANK McFRIEL. These the News has promised to elect; and it may be used for "breach of promise."

When The Votes Come In.

In Louisville the A. P. A., or "A-pa-lism" as they call it down there, has caused a split among the Democrats. CARLISLE, one of the cleverest men in the present Congress from the South, was beaten for a renomination by E. J. McDERMOTT, who is a Catholic. It appears that the Democrats who are not in union with McDERMOTT in the matter of religion have been delving in state's ties and they claim that while the citizens of McDERMOTT's faith poll only twenty-five per cent. of the total vote they hold 75 per cent. of the offices. The A. P. A. is said to have an active membership in Louisville of 10,000, all of whom are voters, and in politics they are about evenly divided between the Republicans and Democrats. The latter charge McDERMOTT with using Church influence to secure his nomination, and they are threatening to knife him at the polls. WALTER EVANS, the Republican Candidate, is a "Campbellite" in religion, and although not an A. P. A. it is understood he will get the vote of the organization solid. His friends claim that he will poll a great many Catholic votes as a rebuke to McDERMOTT for carrying his religion into politics. This is certainly a queer mix up and goes to show what a helio's thing politics is.

Supposed Train Robber Captured in Cincinnati.
His Leg Was Broken While Attempting to Board a Freight Train.

Though Poorly Dressed, On His Person Was Found Rolls of Bills and Stacks of Silver—Chief Detective Believes He Is Member of the Quakette Gang.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 19.—A man was brought into the city, registered at Central station as Charles A. Morganfield, and then sent to the city hospital Thursday evening, whom the police have every reason to believe is one of the men who stopped a train at Aquia Creek, Va., a few days ago and robbed the Adams express car of a sum of money estimated at from $25,000 to $100,000.

Wednesday morning about 3 o'clock a plainly dressed stranger attempted to board a C. & I. D. freight train at Chester Park, and in doing so missed his footing and fell, breaking his right leg. A gardener named Henry Gleason, found him some time after sunrise lying unconscious in a pit. Gleason took him to his home, but he seemed so suspicious, his refusing to say anything to questions, that he declined not to keep him any longer than he could help.

The man had money in all his pockets, and was very liberal. For every favor done him he would pay with a $5 or $10 bill.

Telegrams had been sent here from the east regarding one of the men who had been arrested at Parkersburg the other evening, and Chief Detective at once decided to go out and catch the man in. At 5:30 the patrol wagon arrived and the man was carried into central station on a stretcher and Col. Deitch drew a chair alongside of him and questioned the man. His answers were very contradictory.

He was then removed to the city hospital, his outer clothing, hat and shoes and value being taken to the chief's office. Under the sweat band of his hat were found two bank notes—a $100 bill on the Bank of Commerce of Baltimore, and a $50 bill on the First National bank of Camden, N. J. In his vest and coat were found $274.45, chiefly in gold, and with some small change. Nothing was found in his shoes. The value was next opened and was found to contain various articles of clothing.

The first thing the officer saw was a brown slouch hat, which one of the train robbers wore; the next was a pearl shirt, also mentioned in the description of the man who crossed the river at Parkersburg to Bellaire. When the shirt was opened a great roll of silver was disclosed, summing up $10,171. This made a total of $432.10, and the excitement increased. Col. Deitch instructed Detective Moser to go at once to the city hospital and order all of the man's clothing removed and brought to headquarters.

In McDERMOTT's hunt for farther clues continued. A box of quinine pills was found, bearing the label of L. Leffer & Sons, 66 Baltimore street, Cumberland Md.

At 6:30 o'clock the officers who had gone to the hospital returned with all of Morganfield's clothing and a roll of money which could hardly be carried in a hat. It contained $750, and had been tied in the front part of the coat. This money was all in $10 and $50 bills. When it was found upon him he kept silent and only spoke once, to say that it had been won at craps and poker, which he played for a living.

At the hospital an examination was made by the physicians, and it was found that the fracture was in the leg that the leg would have to be amputated.

GOOD TIMES COMING.

President Roberts, of the Pennsylvania. Talks—A Gradual Improvement All Along the Line.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—President Geo. R. Roberts, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., a system which pays $100,000,000 a year, has recently returned from Europe. He is one of the most conservative of the men who stand for the gradual and general improvement of which will be evidenced by an active demand for paying investments on the part of capitalists. Money will now, think, be drawn into active uses, and will stimulate enterprise in many directions, so that we may look for greater activity in all branches of trade and manufacture. So far as my observation goes, there is already a general return throughout the country to manufacturing activity; the manufacturers of iron are more active now than for a year past.

Probably no matter is of more importance to the welfare of our country than the enactment of proper laws for the regulation of our great transportation interests.

ARMY BEER

Discussed by Gen. Ruger in His Report—He Criticizes the Instructions of Post Exchanges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The annual report of Brig. Gen. Thomas H. Ruger, commanding the department of California, dated August 23, is almost wholly devoted to a detailed account of the events following the receipt by him on the evening of July 1 of the president's orders to enforce the mandates of the United States Congress against the obstruction of the mails, practically ending with the withdrawal of the troops from active field service in Southern California August 16.

Very few recommendations are made, except in regard to post exchanges, which are criticized almost as severely as by Gen. Ruger.

On this subject Staff Inspector General Evan Miles comments as follows: "The introduction of the sale of beer at a post exchange means the introduction of two classes of people, viz.: The Christian temperance advocates and the liquor dealers. The promoters and advocates of the scheme intended the post exchange to be a place of rational amusement and comfort of the soldier men, to the end that they would spend their evenings in it instead of visiting saloons."

RIOT IN VIENNA.

Workmen Engage in It, Through Excitement About Universal Suffrage.

VIENNA, Oct. 19.—The rioting which broke out in the city of Vienna on the evening of the 18th inst. was the result of the excitement about the universal suffrage had one of their periodical collisions with the police Thursday. After a mass meeting of the workers, which was held in the social democratic quarters, ten thousand of them marched out into the streets toward the Reichs-rath. Two companies of mounted police, who had been called out at the moment the procession began, met the head of the column and ordered the men to disperse. The street crowd hurried to the assistance of the leaders and formed a compact and determined body.
